Interest-driven Decision Making

Is this you?

1. I have no idea what I want to study!
2. I definitely don't know what I want to pursue as a career!!

Then do not worry- many applicants do not. In fact, some data suggests upwards of 52% of school students do not know what career they want to pursue!

What do we mean by “interest-driven”?

When we say “interest-driven” we mean that you don't necessarily know where you want to go, we are working with where you are at now; the bottom, and working up, hence a “bottom-up” approach.

Higher Education gives you the perfect environment to explore how to apply academia and theory to industry and the professional working world.

Career-Driven Decision Making

Is this you?

1. I have a very good idea what career I am interested in.
2. I just need to figure out the best way to get there that suits me.

Brilliant news! Having a clear goal or destination can take a lot of uncertainties out of your Higher Education choice and free up time to think about other things.

Degree apprenticeships?

“Professional” degrees?

What do we mean by “career-driven” decision making?

The career or sector is the “top” or goal, and we work back identifying steps you need to take in order to get there, hence this is considered a top-down approach.

If you do want to access a particular profession, there are some important considerations to make to ensure you get there as efficiently as possible while enjoying the process becoming a skilled student practitioner.

Example 1: UG Full-time at 18

Student 1:

- Final year of a mixture of BTEC and A-levels at college.
- Starting to think about what they would like to study, and what they need to do to get there- no idea about jobs!

They like the idea of:

- Theoretical learning
- Student life/ social and sports opportunities.

They don't like the idea of:

- Practical work
- Choosing a career right away

Example 2: Foundation Year

They like the idea of:

- Theoretical learning
- Engaging in student lifestyle

They are concerned about:

- Adjusting to higher education

Student 2:

- Was looking forward to University and waiting for their A Level results.
- They found them difficult for a variety of reasons and didn't achieve their required entry grades.
- They were told to consider a Foundation year.

Example 3: Degree Apprenticeship

Student 3

- Finished a BTEC in college a few years ago, and decided University wasn't for them.
- Now in a job earning money and saving for their future but beginning to desire further progress.

They like the idea of:

- Maintaining an income while learning
- Training for a specific professional role

They don't like the idea of:

- “Student” lifestyle
- Abstract/ theoretical learning

Example 4: Top-up Degree

Student likes idea of:

- Learning in segments to balance education, work and family.

Student doesn't like:

- The idea of coming in to University

Student 4:

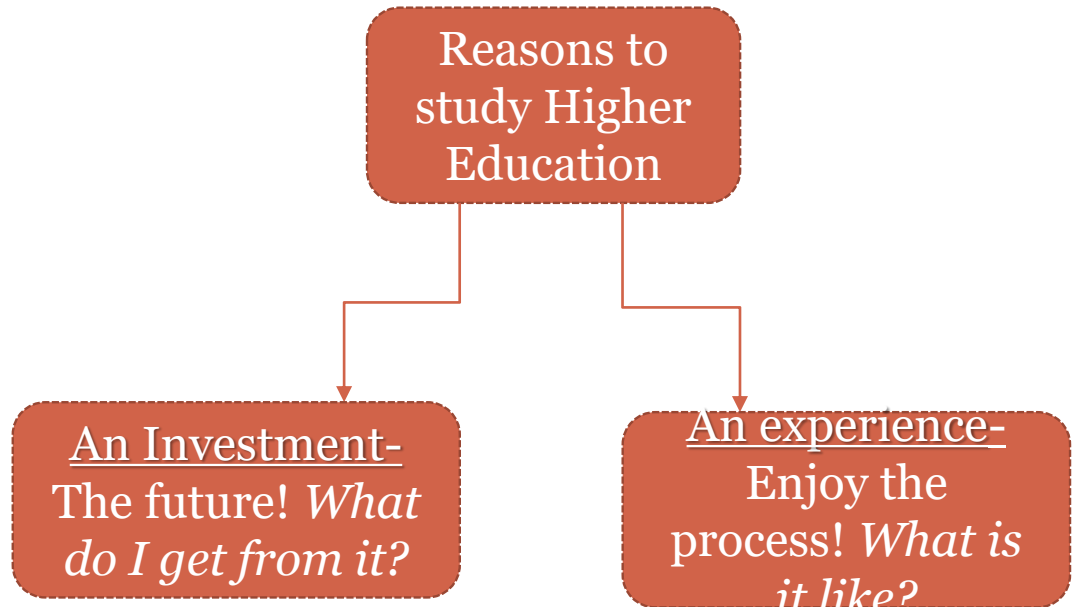

- Finished Sixth form 15+ years ago.
- Began work and earned a salary to buy a house and raise a family.
- Now wanting to progress, began a 2 year part-time course at college as they depend on an income while studying.
- After this course, top-ups allow them to convert their studies into a full Bachelors Degree.

So Why Should I Go?!

There has never been such a time to question the value of pursuing Higher Education.

We are not here to tell you that Higher Education is the only pathway to success, nor is it the right route for everyone!

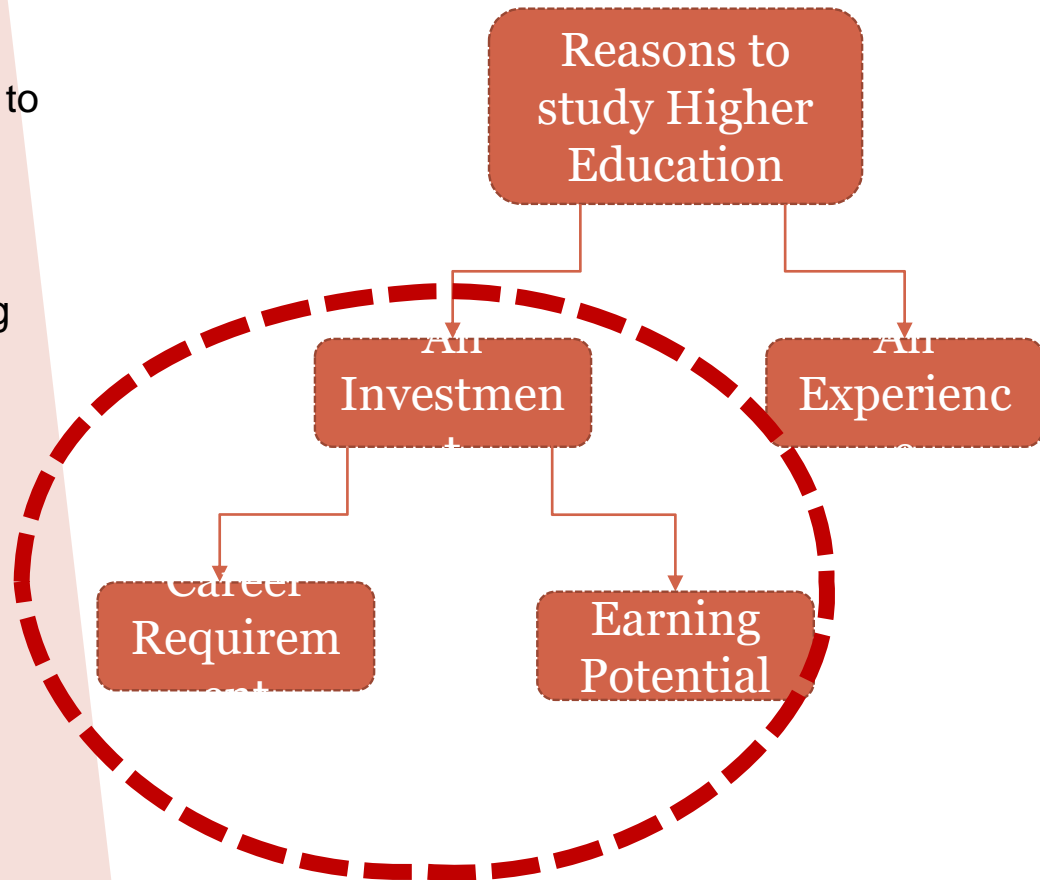

There are however some definite benefits graduates gain for going to University, and we categorise them into 2 areas.

Higher Education as an Investment

Higher education is a great way to invest in your development and career prospects.

There is a wealth of data looking into the benefits working professionals experience from holding a level of higher education.

Career Requirement

In many fields of work, a degree is quite simply essential.

Careers such as: Architecture, Accountancy, Medicine &

Students obtaining university degrees in the UK -thousands

Highly Skilled Career Employment Rates:

65% Graduates

77.4% Post-graduates

24.3% Non-graduates

25% of the jobs in the UK Economy require a degree

Employment rates for graduates are increasing, while the non-graduates it is decreasing

(Employer Skills Survey 2022)

We rank 6th amongst all UK Universities for overall graduates in highly skilled jobs, and we have around 30,000 students!

Earning Potential

Remuneration is a fancy way of saying how much you are paid for your time at work.

£38,000	Dentistry
£35,000	Medicine
£33,000	Veterinary Science
£29,000	Economics
£29,000	Engineering

Graduates earn £10,000 per year more than those who do not hold a degree.

-£26,000 average wage for non-graduates

-£36,000 average wage for graduates

-£42,000 average wage for post-graduates

(Graduate labour market statistics, Calendar Year 2021)

Higher Education as an Experience

This point emphasises the value of the experience, over the destination.

Experiential learning is a huge part of becoming your own person, and any graduate will admit University was a huge learning experience.

Social

University is one of the best social platforms you will be on, put quite simply!

Amongst halls of residence and your course mates, enrichment opportunities add further opportunities to establish a rich social life.

Halls of Residence

Moving away from home for the first time with a bunch of other students studying different courses, from different parts of the world is a brilliant social experience. Sheffield Hallam guarantees a place in Halls to all students.

Course mates

Your course is a great place to meet new friends. Some of our courses take 200+ students every year and offer upwards of 10 elective modules per academic year, so you will be learning alongside a huge student body with lots of opportunity to collaborate and share ideas.

Enrichment

Sports and societies are a fantastic way to meet people. Remember- a society can complement your studies, or it can be completely un-related!

Enrichment at University

time at University, and you can do that in numerous ways outside of your study time.

Volunteering

A great way to both contribute to society, and build professional networks and strengthen your CV. This can be an hour a week, or a summer in Australia!

Sports

Team Hallam (club sports)- 40+ student ran clubs, with 65 teams entered into the BUCS.

Societies

Over 100 societies from Scuba Diving, Harry Potter Quidditch, Tea Drinking to E-Sports.

SHU Enterprise

We have the largest free student consultancy service in the UK. We won the “2021 Outstanding Entrepreneurial University of the year”.

Study abroad

Under our “Go Global” scheme, there are a number of opportunities you can go abroad to one of 100+ Universities around the world.

Placement Years

The vast majority of our courses come with an optional placement year. These are a fantastic way to make contacts in the industry and often lead to job prospects upon graduation.

Course summary

The study of zoology is an exploration of how animals have evolved, how they function, and the ways in which they interact with their environment. The subject integrates anatomy, physiology, behaviour, ecology, evolution and conservation to provide a comprehensive understanding of species structure and diversity.

Humans have created a rapidly-changing world to which animals have had to adapt. Understanding the amazing diversity of animals that share our planet helps us to understand our origins, as well as predict future evolution.

The BSc (Hons) Zoology degree at Lincoln is taught by research-active staff who take part in internationally-renowned research. The degree aims to provide a broad understanding of the subject, encompassing the study of key aspects of modern zoology in a diverse range of invertebrates and vertebrates. You have opportunities to study animals in their natural habitat at key points during your studies.

Modules

In your first year studying Zoology, you will have the opportunity to develop a broad understanding of biological concepts, including genetics, evolution, ecology, anatomy and physiology.

During the second year, more specialist modules cover vertebrate and invertebrate zoology, reproduction and development, and plant-animal interactions. You can choose from a selection of optional modules to align your studies with areas of particular interest to you.

There is an emphasis on independent research in your final year and you will be expected to undertake a substantial research project, as well as modules, which aim to develop your critical scientific skills.

You will participate in two residential field trips in the UK, enabling you to study animals in the wild. These trips are part of two core modules in the first year and second year. There is also an overseas field trip available in your final year as part of the optional 'Overseas Field Course' module.

For the most up to date module information, please visit the course page for this programme on our website. Some programmes provide you with the opportunity to focus your study in a particular area through optional modules. Timetabling arrangements may limit the availability of some optional modules to some students. As the options often reflect staff research interests, they may alter over time due to staff availability.

Assessment method

The way students will be assessed on this course will vary for each module. It could include coursework, such as a dissertation or essay, written and practical exams, portfolio development, group work or presentations to name some examples. Throughout this degree, students may receive tuition from professors, senior lecturers, lecturers, researchers, practitioners, visiting experts or technicians, and they may be supported in their learning by other students.
